Principal's message

Welcome to the first 'TRINS on Tuesday' of the 2024/25 academic year. Yes, we are almost a quarter of a way through the twenty-first century! As we look around us now, as well as reflecting upon recent years, we know that the students at TRINS today will have as their inheritance a world full of challenges, as well as opportunities. 'Twas ever thus', might be the response. I do feel that the pace of change, and the unpredictability that is inherent within the urge for innovation that we experience around us, presents a world which is significantly different from that of the last quarter of the twentieth century, the world in which TRINS parents and grandparents grew up.

As a school, we aim to engage with the novelty of our changing world and provide our students with the skills - often soft skills - to be adaptable learners, as well as to develop the resilience that will stand them in good stead in a future in which volatility will be present and adaptability required. These are partnered with a strong sense of values, always a core element in the education the school provides. As our students return to school, they bring with them that energy and excitement that will make this year another special set of experiences. If you and your child are new to Trivandrum International School, I wish you a particular welcome. To all students, parents and friends of the school, have a great year ahead!

Mr. Richard Hillebrand

REOPENING OF ELC (PK1 AND PK2) AND EY (KG1 AND KG2)

On 5th June, the Early Learning Center (ELC) reopened its doors, followed by the reopening of the Early Years (EY) on June 19th. The start of the new school term brought mixed emotions for parents as preschoolers embarked on their educational journey. There were tears and smiles as the little ones found comfort and safety in the hands of their dedicated teachers.

A special thanks goes to Mrs. Mary George, wife of our president, Mr. George M. Thomas, who graced the city campus with her presence on the reopening day of ELC. Mrs. George served as a warm host for the new parents and a loving grandmother figure for the new babies, making the transition smoother for everyone involved.

The campus is now buzzing with excitement and the joyful laughter of returning students, accompanied by their equally enthusiastic parents. The orientations were a happy reunion, setting a positive tone for the academic year ahead. Sincere thanks goes to Ms. Rensy Oommen and Mr. Sanjay Prabhakaran for honouring the orientations at the City campus with their strong support and encouragement. We eagerly anticipate the excitement and adventures that are yet to come.
